Extract from the President's foreword to the British Judo Council Contest Rules:

"Once a contestant has entered into a contest, the decision of the Referee, right or wrong, fair or unfair, biased or not, that decision is absolutely final. These rules are not devised for contestants, or indeed any other person, to use in any way that is contrary to the spirit of Judo. They are merely a perimeter within which Judoka's can contest freely with an attitude true to the BJC aims and objectives of promoting traditional judo values".
